

Bottega Intreccio

Cocolla Pendant

Design by: Maurizio Bernabei

It takes 6.5 hours of skillful weaving using a centuries-old technique known as intreccio to create the bell-shaped Cocolla Pendant, which consists of a tiered, conical top that protracts outward into a wide circular base. The architectural lines of the design create an unexpected pairing with the 135 meters of wicker from which the fixture is fashioned. Turn up the surprise factor by opting for one of the several colors in which this pendant lamp is available, or lean into its minimalist lines by forgoing paint or lacquer and selecting a natural finish.
